Anne Frank: A History for Today

May 1st-May 30th, 2017 at West Kildonan Collegiate, 101 Ridgecrest Ave

An International Travelling exhibition from Anne Frank House in Amsterdam.

On July 6th, 1942, Anne Frank, just thirteen years of age, became a fugitive, was joined by her parents and sister, hidden away in a secret factory annex in Amsterdam. During her two years of hiding, Anne kept a diary, which has survived to become powerful symbol of a young girl's optimism and vision for a better world as she came of age in a time of terror. Her story is the experience of a young Jewish girl, growing up within the inhumanity of the Holocaust.

This exhibition aims to increase youth and public knowledge about the events of the second World War, the Holocaust, and Anne Frank.

This exhibit also touches on the Canadian participation in the Second World War in Europe. as told through the story of Canadian soldiers, dealing with themes of discrimination, Canada's roles in major battles, POW experiences, liberation of Nazi camps, war brides, increasing knowledge about Canada's history and role. dealing with themes of discrimination , Canada's role in major battles, POW experiences, liberation of Nazi camps, war brides, increasing Canadian's knowledge about Canada's history and role.

This exhibition is based on the concept of peer education.

Visitors are walked through the exhibit by high school students who 'teach' other students about the content of the exhibit.
